Strong and Mighty

“Be lifted up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in. Who is the King of glory? The Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle. Who is the King of glory? The Lord strong and mighty...” —Psalms 24

God want every Christian to walk and act in His capacity not living below the expectation or capacity of God Power and authority, that is why He made Himself known as the Lord Strong and Mighty.

Our God is not a weak God we serve a God Strong and Mighty He called the weak and make them strong and mighty men People like David, Moses, Jeremiah etc.

Joel 3:9 said, “...wake up the mighty men...” When troubles come, when trials come, when storms come, it's time to wake up the mighty man or woman on the inside of you. We're not weak. We're called to be strong and mighty. God wants us to be truly strong and mighty.

The apostles were weak people but He made them Strong and Mighty men who did great deeds and thought great thoughts. We don't join weakness. We're called to be strong and mighty.

The word strong or mighty is appear 500 times in the Bible. Three times in Deuteronomy the Bible commands, “Be strong. Be strong. Be strong.” Don't give in to your weakness. Don't give in to your weakness. Three times in the book of Joshua, He says, “Be strong.”

The only way to be strong is to FOCUS on strong and mighty God. Focusing on weakness produces more weakness and defeat. Only strength can help weakness. The only way to make the weak stronger is to make the strong stronger. If you're worried about people who are in their weakness, you need to get stronger because weakness cannot help the weak. The only thing that can help the weak is to strong. We need to be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might. You don't get strength by catering to the weak.

We must continue to grow become a people of valor. Paul wrote to Timothy and he said, “I write unto you young men that you be strong.” Be strong against temptation. Be strong in your morals. Be strong in your character. Be strong. Only be strong.

Mighty men stood, the Bible said, against rovers. There were bandits, and they would come and try to steal from God's people. But mighty men would fight them off. Jonathan, David's nephew, fought a giant. God never had a giant on His side. Giants are freaks. The demonic world of intimidation has its giants, but we're not giants. We're called to be giant-destroyers.

Don't be afraid of what you face. It's time to be strong and to be mighty because we have a mighty God. Lift up your head. Be lifted up you everlasting doors and the King of glory will come in. Who is the King of glory? The Lord, strong and mighty; the Lord, mighty in battle.

"WHAT IF YOU'RE WRONG?"

From Atheist to Christianity: A Personal Journey of Wendy Cunningham

That was the question that started it all. When you're raised an Atheist as I was, believing there is no God, it's easy to think that what you believe is the absolute truth. My grandmother was sure, my mother was sure, and so I became sure there was no God. In public school I was taught I didn't have to believe in God because there are plenty of theories that suggest a God didn't create the world or me. My teachers were sure, my friends were sure, and so I became sure the world could exist without a Creator.

But what if I was wrong? What if there was a God?

Despite how confident I was in what I believed, at the end of the day, my confidence didn't make my beliefs true. That is a hard lesson to learn and an even harder reality to face. Trust me. I've lived it.

Tom, the man who would become my husband, was the one who truly challenged my beliefs. He asked me hard questions. I knew what I believed, but as he pushed on my answers it became very clear that I didn't really know why I believed what I believed, and worse, I didn't know how I'd arrived at those conclusions.

Could I have been created? Why do I think I couldn't have been? Was there really a Big Bang? Did that make more sense than God? Am I just being stubborn here?

The questions started to flood my brain and my confidence started to fail. My husband didn't tell me about God, not in the way one might expect, but he found a way to get me to consider the possibility of God. My husband trusted what God promises in 2 Chronicles 15:2: If you seek Him, He will be found by you. Tom knew he didn't have to take me all the way from where I was to where God is, he just had to point me in the right direction.

God is faithful to do the rest.

After a few years of questioning, arguing, considering, and doubting, I found myself at a precipice. I knew I could no longer believe in the lie that God didn't exist—it was clear to me that something or Someone created this world and me—but I didn't know if I could fully buy into a God who allowed so much sadness and brokenness.

Was God even good? If He was real,

did I even want Him?

Although this is a question many Christians, myself included, continue to struggle with today, I've come to understand there is purpose in everything—both the good and the bad. Sin disrupted God's original plan, and we've been choosing sin over God every day since the garden. However, God can be counted on to redeem the brokenness and to use our mistakes and rebellion for our good. Tom helped me to see how true that was in my own story.

The real shift for me came when I discovered I was pregnant with my first child. I now see how beautiful it is that God has given us an earthly parallel to an eternal relationship. God is a Creator, and He gave us the ability to be creators as well so we might understand just a bit of the unconditional love He has for us. If you're a parent, you know what I mean. I love my children in a way they will never be able to fully understand or return. Yes, my kids love me dearly, but I would move heaven and earth for them. I knew, as my first baby grew inside of me, that she would have the choice to love me, to respect me, to stay in relationship with me. She could choose the same way we can choose (or choose not) to love God.

This was profound to me. It broke my heart for the way I'd distanced myself from a Father who loved me so completely.

And then, one afternoon, everything changed forever.

I was folding laundry in my bedroom, nearly eight months pregnant, and suddenly I felt God in the room with me. It was indisputable. I'd been asking for Him to reveal Himself to me, but I wasn't sure what that meant or would look like. I didn't know if He could or would do it. But He did. My Father in Heaven became as real to me as the child inside me whom I could no more see than touch—not there in my arms, but undeniably existent all the same.

As tears fell from my eyes, I got down on my knees. Years had passed since I'd first started to wonder, and there were still years of questions to be asked and answers to be sought, but I could no longer keep my heart from the God who authored and perfected every step of my life. He'd been faithful to meet me in the middle of my imperfection. It was the least I could do to confess Him as Lord.

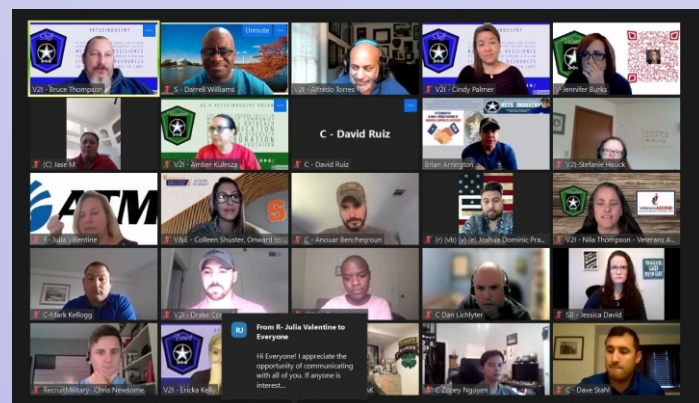

In the months and years that passed after that fateful moment in the middle of my laundry, I came to know Jesus as my Savior and the Bible as my compass. If you've never known Jesus nor read the Bible, both can be overwhelming, mystical, and confusing. But as I sought to understand and prayed for revelation, God showed up again and again. The pieces fell together more and more. Jesus is the tangible proof of God. Jesus is the missing piece of the puzzle. Jesus is the rock that was always missing from my life's foundation. Finding Him was like coming home after a long journey—Restful relief.

The beautiful thing about being in relationship with our Heavenly Father is it's always new, never boring, and constantly growing deeper. It's funny to think that I used to feel confident in my belief that God couldn't be real, because that belief made my life full of insecurity and fear. Now, not only do I know what I believe, I know why I believe it and how it's true and that fills my life with peace and confidence like nothing ever has or ever will.

God is good. He is seeking you like you can't imagine. The Bible tells us that if we draw near to God, He will draw near to us (James 4:8) but don't ever forget that it's God who initiates. He's the one chasing you. And I am sure of this, that He who began a good work in you will bring it to completion at the day of Jesus Christ (Philippians 1:6). He started it. And He will complete it. Your job is simply to seek Him.

The Value of Resilience

Minister Veronica E. Williams

Our lives take on many forms of experiences depending on the season we are in, and we are empowered to reach positive results in our life, if we demonstrate resilience. One way that we can be empowered is showing resilience in everything we pursue. A working definition of “resilience is the ability to grow and thrive in the face of life's challenges and bounce back from adversity.” Resilience can operate in every aspect of your life.

In Deuteronomy 31:6-8, Moses gives a directive to Joshua in the presence of Israel and says, to “be strong and courageous. Do not be afraid for the Lord your God goes with you.” We will face many challenges on our Christian journey; however, we must know that God is with us and goes with us no matter the difficulty of the circumstances. Since God is our protector and can keep us from any harm that may come our way, we will need to depend on Him as our help. It is our response to those challenges that direct us to a path God intends for us to learn from and the fuel behind it all is resilience. On the flip side of our response with God, without resilience, there are times when our decisions lead us to a long road that can eventually divert us from God's plan.

Strategies that can help us build resilience and become empowered in our life's storms are reading God's Word daily in devotion, spending time with God in prayer, and understanding what our experiences are saying to us from a spiritual viewpoint.

As it relates to reading God's Word every day in devotion, His word reminds us of promises that can help us push through trials, it gives us strength to lean forward when we feel like we cannot, and it shows us examples of others who displayed resilience. Not only was Joshua an individual who demonstrated resilience so was Ruth as she dealt with the loss of her husband and faced with a decision to go back to her Country or build a new life in a Country where she would only know one person.

Spending time with God in prayer will lead to answers that will help us with our situation, show God that we are depending on His strength and not ours, and we are able to tap into a source that will never run out and is always available. God lets us know that he will never leave us or forsake us and will always be with us until the end.

Gaining understanding of what our experiences are saying to us from a spiritual viewpoint lets us know that sometimes our experiences are meant to show us how to get to the next level, direct us toward learning our experiences are meant to help us work on a particular weakness, and other times our experiences are meant to be an example for those who are coming behind us.

No matter what storms of life comes your way, you can be resilient in overcoming your challenges. It is also important to remember that our words speak life and death to our spirit, so make sure you are using positive words that lead to resilience, instead of negative words that take away your confidence. Additionally, don't isolate yourself when you are in a storm, surround yourself with other Christians or positive people that can be a resource to help you, and remember that if God did it before, He can do it again. It is God's will that we bounce back from our challenges and lean on Him to be resilient.

We can also learn to show resilience by seeking God's help in our relationships. Cast your concerns and troubles unto the Lord for He will take care of them. As couples, family members, friends, or strangers, when our circumstance are looking dim on how the relationship can be restored, we must look to God's Word for guidance. Recognize when we are unable to fix our situation, we can put them in the Potter's hand to mold and shape it back into the formation that He desires our relationships to be. When our relationships hit a rocky and unsettled place, we must turn it over to God with sincerity, so that He can turn the situation around. When relationships are challenged, it is an opportunity for God to show Himself in it. Realize that it will take Him to work it out. We must humble ourselves, change our heart, and ask for forgiveness for our relationship to be nurtured and restored. Let God arise in our relationships, and He will fulfill His promises of purpose in our storms. Our storms are challenges that are meant to help us grow and move closer

Ask God to help you demonstrate resiliency in your relationship that He will get the glory and you will become who you are to be. Serve the Lord through praise and worship with your whole heart in truth to be over comers and conquerors. Situations may look one way as there is no hope, but when we truly surrender to God and allow His mercy and grace to cover us, we are able to come out of relationships with resiliency to stand the test of time through God's love and faithfulness to carry us through. Will you allow God to heal, deliver and set you free to demonstrate resiliency in His strength and power in your relationships and every area of your life? Jesus is waiting for you to seek Him for help and allow the resources available around you to be a source in your time of need.

ANOTHER IN THE FIRE (GOD IN BETWEEN)

Sandra's

Life can be challenging and so many times family can try to help but they might not just get. Situations we go through in life can make us feel lonely and we feel God is not with us in short, we begin to pity ourselves which makes things worse. Storms are not always going to be there but we must pass through them.

There is someone that stands with us no matter the situation and that is God, he won't let you go through any life storms alone as long as you invite him to the situation, e.g. when we accept as our Lord and personal saviour we have to give him total control of your life not just a particular piece but all of us. I would say am on this table because at certain points in my life, I try to use human knowledge which did not work but the moment I lay it all at the feet of Jesus it feels better and easier.

Another in the fire (God in between) points out that there is always rest when we involve God because his presence with us makes a whole lot of difference.

For I know the plans I have for you," says the Lord. "They are plans for good and not for disaster, to give you a future and a hope.

Jeremiah 29:11 NLT

This affirms the word of God that he has wonderful thoughts towards us and he won't let us fall into a hole.

God isn't a forceful lover, but we have to let him control because TWO KINGS CANNOT RULE! He is in the fire with us so enough of I can do it myself LET GOD IN!

When you go through deep waters, I will be with you. When you go through rivers of difficulty, you will not drown. When you walk through the fire of oppression, you will not be burned up; the flames will not consume you.

Isaiah 43:2 NLT

THE EQUATION IS: ME+ GOD - MY SITUATION = VICTORY

Finally my GOD is victorious and a chicken cannot give birth to a fish so I am my father's child and I overcome on all sides with Jesus with me.

The Bible teaches us that "old things have passed away, behold, all things become new."

This verse tells me to stop what I'm doing and take notice of what God is doing. Behold! If you don't like what's been happening, then behold! Stop and take notice. This is precisely what I'm doing on this the first day of the rest of my life. God is telling me that now is the time to stop and behold! Do not look at what is seen but stop and look at what is unseen. There is a physical world and there is a spiritual world. The physical world is temporary and the spiritual world is eternal. Why look at what is here today and gone tomorrow? No, stop and behold that which lasts forever. Look into the world of the eternal. Stop and behold!

Sometimes the bad things in the natural world can seem to overwhelm you. It appears that your problems are bigger than you are and, in truth, sometimes they are. But how much more in awe should we be and overwhelmed by what takes place in the realm of the spirit? The difference between a natural person and a spiritual person is what's on their mind. The natural person looks at what is temporary and the spiritual person looks at what is eternal. The question to be asked is, "What's on your mind?"

What you think about determines which direction your life will take. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." Our lives are programmed to go in the direction of our most dominate thought. What we think about determines what we'll do, where we'll go, and what we will become. Never minimize the value of a Godly thought. Our thoughts becomes our desires and the Bible says that God gives us the desires of our heart. The key is to "stop and behold!"

When you woke up this morning did you like everything you saw around you? If not, then stop and behold. Those things are subject to change. They probably won't change instantly. The Bible says old things "become" new. And when does this change occur? When you stop and behold. Personally, I don't like everything I see today. There are many things in my life that are not as they should be. But when I look into the eternal I can see God moving on my behalf. What I don't like in the natural world will soon be gone and will be replaced by that which no man can touch. I can not look at where I've been but I must stop and behold where I am going. This is the key to success. As I look ahead I see a future that is bright, a future fueled by and sustained by the glory of God. I see His goodness and His favor over-whelming me like never before. I also see the devil stepping in and trying to put a damper on those plans. I assure you, he will not be successful. I can counter his evil schemes by taking a moment to "stop and behold!" As I do old things pass away and the things of God become new. I see them manifesting before my very eyes. The things of the devil don't have a ground to stand on but the things of God are founded on a Rock!

The reason many people are vagabonds and drift around in life aimlessly is because they haven't taken the time to "stop and behold!" They do not know which direction their life will take because they don't know where they're going. They focus too much on the past and present and never take the time to "stop and behold" and see where God is taking them. Their attitude is "whatever will be, will be" and "it is what it is." They believe they have no power to control their future but they are wrong. This power comes when they take the time to "stop and behold!" This power is supernatural and like a giant locomotive it has the ability to pull you through your current circumstances to a life that is filled with the glory of God.

Sad to say, the world is filled with people who like to be controlled like a puppet-on-a-string. It's easier to let other people and certain events dictate which direction their life will take. Not me. God has given me one life to live and I must rise up and take stewardship of that which I've been given. I do that when I "stop and behold!" I can see into the realm of the spirit and by faith I can allow the Lord to order my steps accordingly. My responsibility is to obey the direction of the Lord and have the courage to put one foot in front of the other. As I do, in time I will arrive at the place I saw when I took the time to "stop and behold!"

For sure, this is a glorious place. It has to be because the Lord brought me here. A heavenly aroma fills this place and the smell of victory is everywhere. There are no weights holding me down and in the spirit I feel light as a feather. I have come to be in the perfect will of God for my life and there is no more glorious place to be. It's wonderful! It's radiant! It's exciting! It's...it's...glorious!! I have no worries here, no frets or concerns. I am in the arms of my beloved Jesus. He is my shepherd and I shall not want. Old things have indeed passed away and most certainly all things that pertain to my life have become new.

With the arms of Jesus around you it really doesn't matter what your circumstances are. Besides, they're only temporary. What matters is that you take the time to "stop and behold!" and let Jesus take you where He wants you to go. What you think is important today won't be important tomorrow. What is important is that you find your "secret place" where the presence of God dwells and by faith and obedience you go where He tells you to go and stay where He tells you to stay. This is what the spiritual life is all about. God always leads us in triumph and in Him we go from glory to glory. Is there a better future than this? I am here to tell you, certainly not.

Never let yourself get too caught up in the hustle and bustle of life. Our lives and the days we live are more important than that. Stop and smell the roses. There is a whole other life out there waiting to be lived and we can live it when we slow down and take notice of what's out there. Your Godly thoughts and faith-filled imagination will become a photograph of the direction your life is taking. It tells you where you're going and what your life will become. There are no limits here and you can go as far as you want. Don't accept second best. Slow down, "stop and behold!", and become all you were meant to be. It's called living the good life.

THE IMPORTANCE OF DECISIONS

Paster Darrell Williams

Decisions play a major part of our lives and every decision that we make will take us closer or farther away from our goals and purpose. An important item that we should keep in mind is decisions should be made with great thought, because the results could be monumental, as well as generational.

In Genesis 25:29-34, Esau was so hungry that he made a hasty decision, which had a lasting result. He did not realize what he was doing when he gave his inheritance to Jacob and when he found out what he did, it was too late to undo the damage. So, what does inheritance mean in the Bible? The concept of inheritance is very important in the Bible and refers not only to the passing on of land and possessions from one generation to another, but also to the earthly and spiritual gifts, which God plans to give to those who are his 'children'.

As you can see, making a decision today can actually impact our future tomorrow. Since making decisions is so important, it is a good idea to have people in our life to help us. Those people can come in the form of family, friends, and mentors. Another way to make good decisions is to ask God for help. Proverbs 3:5-6 states, Trust in the LORD with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways submit to him, and he will make your paths straight. It is reassuring that whenever we have to make decisions, there is someone that we can turn to that will provide us answers that will be in our best interest.

People do not realize how important decisions are until they make the wrong ones

Approaches that can help us make good decisions are pay attention to the types of promises we make, remember that temporary satisfaction has long term consequences, and we do not want to change the spiritual direction that God has in motion for our life.

As it relates to paying attention to the types of promises that we make, we have to be careful of promises that we render to ourselves, others, and God. This is important because promises are simply decisions that affect someone else. When we do not follow through with our promises, it can be evidence that we cannot be trusted, and it is hard to make it in life when we are perceived as someone who cannot be trusted.

When it comes to temporary satisfaction having long term consequences, we should note that impulse will only satisfy an immediate desire, not a permanent need. Unlike Esau, we should never exaggerate our hunger for something because it could create an opportunity for someone to take advantage of our current situation.

Additionally, we never want to lose our viewpoint because when done incorrectly, it can become a difficult part of overcoming temptation.

In addition, we do not want our decisions to change the spiritual wheel that God has in motion. This is important since Jeremiah 29:11 states that, "For I know the plans I have for you," declares the LORD, "plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future." So, if God has plans for us, we should not sabotage our own life with bad decisions that could take us off course.

It is also worth noting that even if we are sorry for our decision, God still allows consequences to play out, which means we really need to pause and understand any long-term affect. The good news is, God has already built a default system that allows us to recover from any decision that is not beneficial to us and all we have to do is repent and ask for His forgiveness. If you want to make better decisions moving forward, ask God to give you the wisdom that you need to make it in life and spend time reading the book of Proverbs to see how those scriptures can elevate your decision making process.

IN THE MIDST OF NOTHINGNESS

Emptiness we know is a vacuum
A place with nothing
The presence of boredom
The alluring yearn for something
In this situation, you are ready to cling on anything
Anything to hold onto
Be it false or just a faint hope
You seem to want to believe that your mind will bail you out
Better still have the feeling that your fantasies will take over your being
You carve out plans in your mind, execute them but still arrive at a dead end
You roam about people who can truly help you
People who will forego their comfort just to see you move
Within your heart you believe you've got something to prove Success is attainable but then again your fear is 'when'!!!?
Psalm 55:2, 1Peter 5:7 and Matthew 11:28-30 all said you should cast your burdens on the LORD
It is in the midst of nothingness that Jesus Christ will come through for you
When no one will boast of being the one who helped you out of your dark times
Remember that God will not share His glory with any man
He alone can and will help you out and no one else
Be rest assured that you've got someone always on the look out for you Jeremiah 29:11 talks about the plans God have for you.... The best of plans any individual can ever think of
It is when all hope seems to have been lost that your loving maker will come through for you
At that very moment where no man seems to be interested in your cause
How do we not cling to the giver of all?
The one who is not in competition with you
The only one who is ready to give you all what you need not want

Right there in the midst of nothingness comes God
In His presence where you never get bored
The one who created everything from nothing is always ready to bring something out of your nothingness
Whenever you find yourself in the midst of nothingness, just know that with God you are never alone.
